Organic Vegetable Twilight Tour

When: August 17, 2017. Dinner served from 5-6pm
Wagon tours start at 6pm

Where: Upper Marlboro Research and Education Center
2005 Largo Rd Upper Marlboro, MD 20774

What: Tours of University of Maryland organic research
  - Using methods to mitigate possible climate change problems in the field
  - Food safety in cantaloupe production systems
  - Companion plantings for increased biocontrol
  - Cover crop effects on pests and natural enemies
  - Future Harvest CASA will give updates on their farmer programs
  - Weed control in organic systems

Who: All organic vegetable growers or those interested in organic vegetable production

There is no charge for the meeting, but registration is requested to help with meal planning.

Register for meeting by sending an email to Jerry Brust: jbrust@umd.edu

University of Maryland Extension programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, gender, disability, religion, age, sexual orientation, marital or parental status, or national origin.